Introduction to Breeders

SAMAKIEN
ALPACAS

Samakien At Samakien Alpacas we take pride in diverse and selective breeding to ensure continued improvement in fibre quality, conformation and the health of our alpacas. Our attentive health management and optimal nutritional program provides the right ingredients to raise happy, healthy, content alpacas. We are currently building our herd by breeding our girls to superior males. We strive to improve the quality of every alpaca we produce through solid breeding choices. Our program has been accelerated in the last two years through our Embryo Transfer program. We are the only breeders to have done so in Queensland. This has enabled us to increase the number of superior animals we have on offer today. No matter how small you might be starting, please come and talk to us. Let us guide you through to your own success story.

Sunline Alpacas are breeders of fine, show quality huacaya alpacas, specialising in whites and fawns. Our aim is to produce animals with increased density and fineness to the fleece while maintaining excellent conformation and frame, and we do this through selective breeding to the best genetics available, from top quality imported Peruvian sires and proven Australian pedigrees. All our alpacas are people friendly and have adapted to our Queensland climate over generations. We invite you to join the Sunline family - there's plenty to learn but plenty of support given!

Resurgam
Henry entered the industry in 2003 and sought proven genetics from successful breeders, all down the eastern states. Early success in the local show rings showed that this approach was bearing fruit. However, barely had this success begun to emerge when a divorce led to the sale of the property and the agistment of his animals in Qld, NSW and Vic. Very little opportunity then existed for exhibiting although he had some good success in Vic regional shows and the Melbourne Royal and the 2007 National with junior male suris. Resurgam animals derive from proven bloodlines throughout the eastern states and are sure to add improvement to your herd. Henry 0402793366
